Three gates on east side of MDY Royal Wall to explore

THE Mandalay Royal Wall is impressive, with three gates on each side of the royal wall and each gate with its own name.

Three gates on the east side of the royal wall to explore are the Loon Kae Gate, the Oo Htake Gate and the Thaung Nyut Gate.

The names of the doors are recorded on a three-tiered brick crenellated wall at the left side of each entrance.

Mystic figures were buried in accordance with the traditions under the merlon of the corner of the Golden City walls.

The Loon Kae Gate, a northeastern gate, was built under the supervision of Mahar Min Hla Min Htin Kyaw. The words 'Loon Kae' were chosen to name the gate because of its auspiciousness that would be great forever.

The U Htake Gate, located in the middle of the east side of the city wall, was built under the supervision of Magway Minister Thato Mingyi Mahar Min Hla Thiha Thu. The gate was named after its location at the top of the wall.

Today it is known as the front door of the palace.

The Thaung Nyut Gate, located in the southern part of the eastern royal wall, was built under the supervision of Maha Min Hla Thiha Thu, the Mayor of Khan Pat town. The name "Thaung Nyut" was chosen, taking the auspiciousness that would conquer the whole island of Zabudipa (the whole world).

The names of the gates are to be studied for many purposes.—Nway Nadi (Myitnge)

The discussions also touched on matters relating to resuming automobile registration services, relaxing the Stay-at-Home orders in the townships depending on the situation of COVID-19, resumption of domestic flights, and allowing visits to the Nay Pyi Taw Council Area and other re-

5 new tour destinations promoted in Bagan-NyaungU

THE Directorate of Hotels and Tourism (Bagan Branch) is working hard to reopen the tourist destinations as part of the government's tourism recovery plan in the post-COVID-19 period and it also makes efforts to designate new tour destinations for the travellers to Bagan ancient cultural zone in addition to Bagan-NyaungU cultural zone. The following are the five new tourist destinations where can be reached via Bagan.

(1) Kyauk Yay Kan

It is about 1 mile 7 furlongs from NyaungU to Tu Yin Taung. It is just a trekking tour which lasts about 30 minutes from a monastery located on Tu Yin Taung. It is convenient for those like trekking. Kyauk Yay Kan is 80 ft in length, 80 ft in width and about 30 ft in depth and it is a strange lake of Tu Yin Taung. There is Mya Kan in the west and ancient Bagan pagodas, Ayeyawady river and Tant Kyi Taung in the north-west of Kyauk Yay Kan. These places are the new tour sites which garner the interest of local and foreign tourists most.

(2) Zee O Village

Zee O Village is located at 25°30'N latitude and 95°12' 15'E longitude and about 13 miles from NyaungU. The travellers can see the Sal trees (0.13 square mile) and purified wood conserved by the Forest Department. There is also about 900-year-old tamarind tree and iron furnace of 1st century in the village. The site can be supposed as a place for nature-based tourism.

(3) Set Set Yo Village

The village is about 2 miles from NaungU and located at 21°06'N latitude and 95°08' 04'E longitude. It can be reached via Byatta Pansat Road. The village conserves its ancient living styles, and the boys and girls adopt their coiffures like 'yaung pay soo', the traditional topknot style with a circular fringe until they attend the university. The village operates toddy climbing businesses and boasts of strange living styles. So, it is a must-see place for local and foreign photographers.

(4) Popa Taung (Mount Popa)

The Popa Taung is about 30 miles from Bagan-NyaungU and it is a 3 miles 6 furlongs trekking tour. It has about 120 monkeys out of 3 species of endangered Dust Leaf Monkey (Presbytis obscura) which inhabit at Nwar La Boh Taung, Say Kwin Taung and Mhan Pya Taung. So, it is a nice tour destination with full of nature of Popa Taung, rare birds, animals, orchids, flowers and herbs.

(5) Kyauk Myat Maw Pagoda

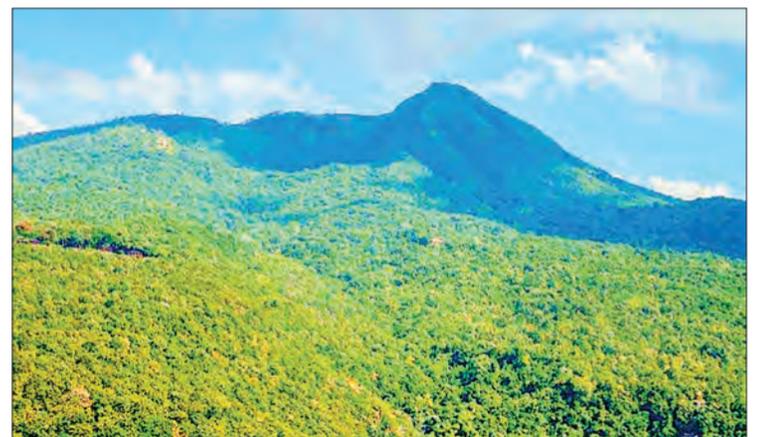

The Kyauk Myat Maw pagoda is located beside the Ayeyawady riverbank in the southern part of Myin Ka Bar village near the Soe Myin Gyi pagoda. The pagoda is in two-level structure on the same plinth, and the inner part bears octagonal structure with artworks of the Pyu era. The outside and inner parts of the pagoda are separated with pillars which are about 3 ft in width. According to the archaeologists, the pagoda was constructed at about 12-13 century AD. This site also attracts the interest of tourists with its stunning views of the sunset at Ayeyawady river and iconic views of Tant Kyi Taung. —Pe Lain (Bagan) (Translated by Khine Thazin Han) ferent sections; MSF Original for new projects and MSF Advanced for MSF Alumni. Both sections are selective through an online application, which started several weeks ago. The finalists of each section will be announced on November 23. Myanmar Script Fund is operated by MEMORY Cinema. MSF acts as a talent scouting for independent cinema in Myanmar. Since 2016, more than 70 talents have been trained, representing about 30 feature film projects. Beyond the competition, all finalists are then eligible for a customized follow-up, notably for future applications to international platforms that are crucial for the development of a film project.

The MSF programme is supported by the Union Ministry of Information of Myanmar, the French Embassy, the Swiss Embassy and the Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation (SDC), The European Union Delegation in Myanmar, CNC (Centre National du Cinéma et de l'image animée), Arte, the US Embassy, the Locarno Festival-Open Doors and Forever Group.

Putao locals earn extra income from hunting bestselling rock-bugs

THERE are more and more people looking for rock-bug this year in Kachin State. Since the demand for this locally known 'Kyaukyapo' insect is high with a good price, some people are even leaving their jobs to hunt the bug at night, according to local people.

"Last year, the price was around 8,000 kyats to 10,000 kyats for a tin of the bug. This year, the local price is around 6,000 kyats. But people go for bug searching to get extra income for the family. Some search with their family, as for us, almost everyone in the village searches the bug," said Ko Adiyio from Rigyawdi Village.

A genus of Kyaukyapo insects found only from November to March in Putao has two types as in small and large species this year. For the large one, the price is up to 50,000 kyats per viss whereas, for the small one, the price is up to 90,000 kyats per viss.

Rock-bugs are collected before sending to the market. PHOTO: SANN NYUT (PUTAO)

"Kyaukyapo hunters are booming along the Mula Creek, as the family earns a living and earns more than a day's wages in the evening. They don't need to go and sell because the buyers come and buy the bug at their homes," said Ma Archi, a Kyaukyapo hunter, herself.

"There are many collectors here because China is buying the insect. If one condensed-milk-tin-size can of the bug is 6,500 kyats, some family can get two or three cans in a short period of time, so that they can earn about 15,000 kyats to 20,000 kyats a night. Some people leave their farming jobs and go for the bug hunting since the daily wage for farming is only 4,000 kyats at present, so the bug hunting is an opportunity for the family to earn a living." she added.

According to residents, China buys the rock-bug to use in medicine. In Putao, the price was only 200 kyats per tin five years ago, but after 2018, it was more than 5,000 kyats per tin and now it is 6,500 kyats. This year, more and more people are going for the rock-bug hunting in Putao. These bugs are found in creeks, and creeks that are less accessible to people and it can be caught by a mosquito net, sieve and long sticks.—Sann Nyut (Putao)

Public participation is key to lessening govt's health burdens

DUE to some crowds celebrating the 8 November elections results without social distancing, the number of coronavirus positive cases is expected to rise next week.

Following the 8 November general elections, there were some crowds celebrating the results of the elections without following the social distancing regulations.

This negligence in following the health guidelines released by the Ministry of Health and Sports could lead to a rise in the number of positive cases next week.

With the ongoing surge in coronavirus cases during the second wave of the fast-spreading virus, reaching over 71,700 cases and over 1,625 deaths yesterday, the demand for public cooperation is becoming greater day by day.

Deaths at the nation's hospitals have shown that many patients infected with COVID-19 arrived too late when seeking care. Too often, they were only taken to hospitals after their conditions became serious, and after they received medications at home, while under their own care.

Hence, the public is urged not to be anxious about seeking help at hospitals, as hospitals are specially equipped with necessary machines and supplied with medicines to treat COVID-19 patients. Also, one person would be allowed to stay with a patient at the hospital, if a patient's health condition is serious.

Meanwhile, we would like to remind the people that anyone violating the Health and Sports Ministry's order which has banned the gathering of 30 or more people since 6th August, 2020 would face legal punishment, as set out in the Prevention and Control of Communicable Diseases Law.

This limitation is difficult, but it is necessary to prevent the spread of the coronavirus across our country.

The fight against coronavirus stands or falls on whether the people follow the health guidelines. It is the duty of good citizens to follow the directives of the health authorities.

Abiding by the COVID-19 health guidelines is a civic duty to ensure that our country successfully controls the pandemic in order to get our economy back on track to save jobs and lives.

WHO CAUTIOUS DESPITE COVID VACCINE HOPES

No time for complacency as COVID-19 cases surge: WHO chief

Despite encouraging news about COVID-19 vaccines and cautious optimism over potential new tools against the disease, "this is not the time for complacency," the head of the World Health Organization (WHO) warned on Monday during his latest press briefing in Geneva.

WHO chief Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus said the UN agency is "extremely concerned" by the surge in cases in some countries, particularly in Europe and the Americas, which is pushing health workers and health systems to breaking point.

"In this moment when some governments have put all of society restrictions in place, there is once again a narrow window of time to strengthen key systems," he told journalists.

'Playing with fire'

WHO and its partners are working with national authorities, to ensure health workers who fall ill will receive proper coverage and that health systems will be ready when safe and effective vaccines are rolled out.

Tedros again highlighted the actions that have helped to prevent COVID-19 spread, such as contact tracing and cluster investigations, noting that countries which have invested in these areas are facing much less disruption.

"Those countries that are letting the virus run unchecked are playing with fire," he stated

The WHO chief stressed the need for greater action to support health workers but also to keep schools open, protect the vulnerable and safeguard the economy.

"From calling up students, volunteers and even national guards to support the health response in times of crisis, to putting strict measures in place that allow pressure to be removed from the health system. There is no excuse for inaction. My message is very clear: act fast, act now, act decisively," he said

Encouraging but cautious

Although welcoming the latest news on COVID-19 vaccines, WHO is awaiting further data on these potential treatments.

Biotech company Moderna announced on Monday that its experimental vaccine has shown a nearly 95 per cent efficacy rate, according to interim results.

This follows a recent similar announcement by pharmaceutical companies Pfizer and BioNTech.

Samples are tested by scientists at Oxford University's Jenner Institute as the development of a vaccine against the coronavirus continues. PHOTO: UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD/JOHN CAIRNS

Responding to a journalist's question, WHO Chief Scientist Dr Soumya Swaminathan called the development "quite encouraging", while also expressing caution.

"Of course we need to wait and see what the final efficacy and the safety profile of this vaccine will be when the whole data is analyzed after they reach their primary endpoint, and also have enough follow-up of at least two months of half the trial participants for the side effects. And that will then be submitted to the regulatory agencies", she said.

Ensuring equitable access

The Moderna vaccine is among nine candidates in the COVAX Facility: a global initiative for equitable vaccine access led by Gavi, the Vaccine Alliance; the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations (CEPI), and WHO.

More than 170 countries have joined the Facility, including some 92 low and middle income nations.

Discussions with several vaccine manufacturers from across the world is ongoing, said Dr Swaminathan, who explained other considerations for procurement besides efficacy and safety.

"There is an independent prioritization group that is being set up that will look at the dossiers, that will look at the data, that manufacturers are submitting," she told the briefing.

"Then there are the cost considerations as well. There is the affordability, and then there are practical considerations like the need for cold storage, the number of doses of vaccine that will be required, the number of doses that may be available early in 2021."

Limited supplies

Dr Swaminathan expressed hope that results from other vaccine trials currently underway will be released in the coming weeks.

She underscored the need for the COVAX Facility to have the widest possible selection of vaccine candidates as some will be more applicable in certain situations, or among sub-groups such as the elderly, for example.

"I think we're looking at at least the first half of next year, as being a period of very, very limited doses", she said.

THE MODERNA VACCINE REDUCED THE RISK OF COVID-19 INFECTION BY 94.5%

In new breakthrough, Moderna's Covid vaccine nearly 95% effective

US biotech firm Moderna on Monday announced its experimental vaccine against Covid-19 was almost 95 percent effective, a result hailed by the country's top infectious disease scientist as "stunningly impressive."

MODERNA'S early results from a clinical trial with more than 30,000 participants marks a second major breakthrough in the quest to end the pandemic.

Last week, American pharmaceutical company Pfizer and its German partner BioNTech aid their vaccine was 90 per cent effective.

Both frontrunners are based on new technology that uses synthetic versions of molecules called "messenger RNA" to hack into human cells, and effectively turn them into vaccine-making factories.

"The idea that we have a 94.5 per cent effective vaccine is stunningly impressive," Anthony Fauci, director of the National Institutes of Allergies and Infectious Diseases, which co-developed the vaccine, told AFP.

"It is really a spectacular result that I don't think anybody had anticipated would be this good."

"Today's news of a second vaccine is further reason to feel hopeful," tweeted President-elect

Joe Biden, but he cautioned that its widespread distribution was months away.

"Until then, Americans need to continue to practise social-distancing and mask-wearing to get the virus under control," he said.

Moderna plans to submit applications for emergency approval around the world within weeks, and says it expects to have approximately 20 million doses ready to ship in the US by the end of the year.

The company, which has received $2 billion from the US government under "Operation Warp Speed," added it is on track to manufacture between 500 million to a billion doses globally in 2021.

Global infections from Covid-19 have soared past 54 million with more than 1.3 million deaths since the virus emerged in China late last year.

Beginning of the end?

Moncef Slaoui, who leads Operation Warp Speed, told MSNBC he hoped the two vaccines would be approved "somewhere towards in the first half of December," with the Johnson & Johnson vaccine the next on the horizon early next year.

The Moderna vaccine is given in two doses 28 days apart, and the preliminary results are based on the 95 of the 30,000 volunteers who fell ill with Covid-19.

Of the 95, 90 had been in the trial's placebo group, and five in the group that received the drug, called mRNA-1273, translating to an efficacy rate of 94.5 per cent.

There were 11 people who fell severely ill, all of whom were in the placebo group.

A small fraction of people experienced severe symptoms such as fatigue, muscle and joint pains, or redness at the injection site, but these side-effects were short lasting.

Fauci said the next major step was convincing enough people to take the vaccine, particularly in the United States, where anti-vaccine sentiment runs high.

Myanmar-Saemaul Geumgo conducts online training course on village treasury project

THE Myanmar- Saemaul Geumgo opened a three-day online training course on the village treasury project from the training room of the Agricultural Extension and Rural Development Centre in Yezin, Nay Pyi Taw on 16 November.

At the opening ceremony, the speech of Mr Park Cha Hoon, the chairman of Saemaul Geumgo from the Republic of Korea, was screened on a videoclip and Deputy Director-General U Thura Soe delivered an opening remark.

Under the Village Saving System Project jointly conducted by the Department of Agriculture in Myanmar and the Saemaul Geumgo from the Republic of Korea, a total of 34 treasuries have been set up in the villages included in Myanmar- Saemaul Geumgo Project.

Families in this project could save their extra money by reducing unnecessary cost at the village treasuries, and the treasury committees would manage their savings in giving out loans for the capital of businesses in the respective villages. The interests are shared to the members of treasury or rural development projects.

The village treasury course has been conducted for one times in 2018 and two times in 2019, and it was attended by 190 village leaders and 62 agricultural staff members.—MNA

YBS resumes over half of its fleet in Yangon

By Nyein Nyein

OVER 50 per cent of YBS buses are currently operating in Yangon region starting from the first week of November, said U Hla Aung, joint secretary of Yangon Region Transport Authority (YRTA).

"Commencing from the first week of November, our YBS buses are operating 43 per cent in minimum and 56 per cent in maximum. We are worried about crowded buses. The bus lines are instructed to make the drivers and the passengers wear masks, and use hand gel. Although we have difficulty in social distancing, we are trying to arrange for mask-wearing and use of hand gel," he added.

In such a pandemic period like this, YBS operates more than 2,700 buses from 106 bus lines, providing service for over 400,000 passengers in Yangon Region. Before the outbreak of COV-

YBS buses are currently operating in Yangon region. PHOTO: PHOE KHWAR

ID-19, more than 4,500 YBS buses were running in Yangon region with 135 routes carrying approximately 1.8 million commuters, according to YRTA.

Besides, the number of passengers using the YBS buses is a minimum of 12 per cent and a maximum of 26 per cent, compared to the previous percentage, he added.

The number of commuters onboard the buses had dropped after authorities had declared the stay-at-home announcement in 44 townships in Yangon except for Cocogyun township when the COVID-19 second wave started.

Orange price in Shan South drops double amid COVID pandemic

THE price of orange produced from Shan State (South) has dropped double this year, compared to that of last year as a direct result of the COVID-19 outbreak, according to the local farmers.

The truckloads of fruits are not easy to transport daily in such a pandemic period like this. So, the truck fares have hiked double. There is also less number of travellers who reached the region, according to the local farmers.

"The oranges from Shan State (South) do not reach the market because the trucks could not leave the state without permission. The truck charges are also doubled. The traders also demand the fruits at a low price because of rising truck fares. Now, we are sending the oranges to Aungban at a lower price caused by declining demand.

We are facing difficulty to hire the trucks, said a local orange grower.

Last year, the price of big oranges was K2,000 per viss while a small one got K1,000 per viss. This year, the big oranges fetched K800 per viss while the small ones are sold for K400 per viss.

With the low price of orange this year, the local growers are selling the fruits by themselves on the roadsides. However, they could not get much profit because there is less number of travellers in this period.

The oranges are grown mostly in Yegu village, Thitpingyi village and Htee Young village in Pinlaung township. Last year, the oranges from Pinlaung township were sent to Yangon, Mandalay, Aungban and Loikaw.—Zin Yaw Aye

Yangon gold merchants seek large-scale trading permit

By Nyein Nyein

YANGON Region Gold Entrepreneurs Association (YGEA) will exert its effort in seeking large-scale gold selling and buying permit with the local investments, said YGEA Chairperson U Myo Myint.

“We want to link with global gold trading hubs. We want to get into global gold trading. That is why we will again seek the gold trading permit for a large scale,” he added.

At present, trading worth above K200 million is considered as the large-sale trading in the domestic market. In contrast, middle-scale trading covers above K100 million and small-scale is meant for trading valued around K50 million.

“YGEA’s trading value stands at above K200 million, with selling at least two visses of gold (a viss equals to 1.6 kg). Consequently, we are applying for the large-scale investment permit,” he highlighted.

The Ministry of Natural Resources and Environmental Conservation on 12 November responded to the YGEA upon its proposal for large-scale gold selling and buying. The association forwarded its request at the work coordination meeting virtually held on 15 October.

“The permit or licence by Myanmar Investment Commission or Yangon City Development Committee is a must in gold trading at the One-Stop Service Centre for exports. It is not the regular business licence type. As per the rule 51 of Myanmar Mines Law, seeking large-scale selling and buying permit with local investment is required the approval of the Department of Mines. Yet, the department has notified them of the temporary suspension on that,” the YGEA chair explained.

Thus, YGEA will reapply for the permit in the post-COVID-19 era.

Myanmar exports over 160,000 tonnes of rice as of 6 November

THE volume of rice and broken rice exported between 1 October and 6 November in the current financial year 2020-2021 reached 163,413 metric tons, worth over US$60.67 million, according to an announcement from the Myanmar Rice Federation (MRF).

Maritime trade constitutes 54.9 per cent of rice exports, generating $33 million from over 89,764 tonnes of rice, while border trade accounts for around 45 per cent of the total rice exports. Rice exports through the land border have generated an estimated income of $27.55 million from over 73,649 tonnes of rice.

Myanmar’s rice is shipped to 26 foreign countries in October 2020. MRF expected to ship 2.4 million tonnes of rice, and broken rice in the last FY ended 30 September 2020. The country surpassed the export target, sending over 426,611 metric tons to neighbouring countries through border trade and over 2.15 million tonnes of rice and broken rice to foreign trade partners via maritime trade, totalling over 2.58 million tonnes.

A surge in rice export through sea trade was contributed to meeting year’s export target, MRF stated.

Myanmar targets to export 4 million tonnes of rice and broken rice in the current financial year 2020-2021, said U Aung Than Oo, vice president of Myanmar Rice Federation (MRF).

Myanmar shipped 3.6 million tonnes of rice in the FY2017-2018, which was an all-time record in rice exports. The export volume plunged to 2.3 million tonnes, in the FY2018-2019. —Ko Khant

Watermelon trucks stranded at Myanmar-China border

TIGHT security measures at Kyin San Kyawt and Mang Weing checkpoints on Myanmar-China border have resulted in a slow-down in the entry/exit process and a hundred of trucks queuing up at the checkpoint, fruit traders said.

During the previous weeks, around 100 trucks of watermelons and muskmelons could pass through Kyin San Kyawt border checkpoint. The inspection at China’s checkpoint takes longer for drivers beginning from 16 November, and only 50 trucks can enter border crossing. If around 200 watermelon/muskmelon trucks enter the Muse land border, the traffic congestion will worsen. Muse depot traffic control is monitoring the trucks at its upmost, said the owner of Khwar Nyo Fruit Depot.

The prices of watermelon move in the range of 4,500-6,000 Yuan per tonne on 17 November, while muskmelon is priced 4,000-5,800 Yuan per tonne.

The COVID-19 resurgence in Myanmar directly affected the border trade, and some truck drivers have tested positive for the coronavirus. As China is tightening the border security to contain the spread of COVID-19, it caused the delay in trade.

Earlier, trading was conducted in Muse border. The COVID-19 conditions blocked Chinese traders to come. As China has been stepping up border control measures to contain the spread of the COVID-19, the driver substitution policy has been exercised on Muse, Mang Weing and Kyalgaung border route, said chair of Muse-Namkham Chamber of Commerce.

TESTING AND ISOLATING

Over 2,000 migrants cleared from Paris camp amid Covid fears

FRENCH police on Tuesday cleared a migrant street camp outside the Stade de France stadium north of Paris where around 2,000 people, mainly Afghan and African, had been living in cramped tents.

Dozens of police were deployed to carry out the operation, which took place in the midst of a nationwide coronavirus lockdown.

The occupants of the camp, which had mushroomed in size in recent weeks, were taken by bus to Covid-19 testing centres.

Those who tested positive were to be placed in isolation while those who tested negative were to be taken to various shelters and sports halls around the French capital.

Paris is a key stop-off point on the European migrant route, with tented camps repeatedly sprouting up around the city only to be torn down by the police a few months later.

Over the past year, migrants have decamped to the suburbs to try avoid being moved on by the police.

During the first anti-Covid lockdown in March-April, a smaller camp housing around 700 migrants was cleared in the suburb of Aubervilliers, also close to the Stade de France.

evening, the deadline to receive compensation from the organization, a lawyer for the victims told AFP.

Attorney Michael Pfau said that there had been "88,000 claims filed to date. It will probably be 100,000 by day's end."

The figure, revealing the scale of alleged abuse committed over decades by scout leaders, dwarfs the roughly 11,000 complaints believed to have been filed in recent years against the Catholic Church.

"We are devastated by the number of lives impacted by past abuse in scouting and moved by the bravery of those who have come forward," the scouting organization said in a statement.

"We are heartbroken that we cannot undo their pain.

"We intentionally developed an open, accessible process to reach survivors and help them take an essential step toward receiving compensation. The response we have seen from survivors has been gut wrenching. We are deeply sorry," the BSA added.

The group, founded in 1910, has 2.2 million members between the ages of five and 21.

Rocked by accusations of sexual abuse, the BSA filed for bankruptcy in February in an effort to block settlement claims from hitting the organization directly and instead funneled them to a compensation fund.

THE BIGGEST ART HEIST IN MODERN HISTORY

Three arrested over spectacular Dresden museum jewellery heist

GERMAN police on Tuesday arrested three suspects over a spectacular heist a year ago in which more than a dozen diamond-encrusted items were snatched from a state museum in Dresden.

Investigators were also raiding 18 properties in Berlin, including 10 apartments as well as garages and vehicles, police and prosecutors said in a statement.

"The measures today are focused on the search for the stolen art treasures and possible evidence, such as data storage media, clothing and tools," they said.

In what local media have described as the biggest art heist in modern history, the robbers had launched their brazen raid on Green Vault museum in Dresden's Royal Palace on November 25, 2019.

Having initiated a partial power cut and broken in through a window, they snatched priceless 18th-century jewellery from the collection of the Saxon ruler August the Strong.

Items stolen included a sword whose hilt is encrusted with nine large and 770 smaller diamonds, and a shoulder-piece which contains the famous 49-carat Dresden white diamond, Dresden's Royal Palace had said.

Dramatic CCTV footage released at that time showed one of the robbers breaking into a display case with an axe.

"YANKEE GO HOME!"

Pompeo in Turkey for fraught visit with no official talks

US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo paid a fraught visit to Istanbul on Tuesday that included no official meetings and an agenda focused on religious freedoms that Ankara dismissed as "irrelevant".

Ties between Washington and its strategic NATO ally have remained tense despite a personal friendship between US President Donald Trump and his Turkish counterpart Recep Tayyip Erdogan.

A group of 20 to 30 Turks shouted "Yankee go home!" as the evangelical Christian Pompeo headed in for a meeting with the Patriarch Bartholomew I of Constantinople -- the spiritual leader of the Greek Orthodox world -- to express his "strong position" on religious freedoms.

'HUNGARY FIRST'

Hungary's 'Trump before Trump' PM Orban faces US reset

HUNGARIAN Prime Minister Viktor Orban is bracing for tougher treatment from a Joe Biden-led administration in Washington after his all-in bet on a win for President Donald Trump backfired.

Orban's hardline anti-immigration policies, such as building border fences, earned him praise from the President's former advisor Steve Bannon who called him "Trump before Trump".

The only EU leader to endorse Trump's campaign during the 2016 election, Orban praised the President in 2017 for "thinking precisely as we do when he says 'America First'".

"We say the same: 'Hungary first, and then everyone else'," he said in a speech.

Orban also often called mainstream media reports "fake news", a slur popularised by Trump. He applauded his hands-off approach to Hungary compared to the previous Obama administration, which was often more critical.

PRESIDENT-ELECT Joe Biden on Monday called for a new stimulus package to help the United States recover from the damage caused by coronavirus pandemic.

Biden renewed his plea for more aid following a meeting with business and labor leaders to lay out his plans for the world's largest economy.

The type of massive stimulus spending only Washington lawmakers can approve is regarded as key in getting the US back on its feet after the mass layoffs and sharp downturn in growth caused by Covid-19, but Republicans and Democrats have been unable to agree on a new package.

Biden, a Democrat who triumphed over Republican President Donald Trump in elections earlier this month, called for Congress to back a $2.2 trillion measure approved by the Democrat-led House of Representatives.

"It has all the money and capacity to take care of each of those things now. Not tomorrow, now," Biden said in a speech in his hometown Wilmington, Delaware, the state he represented for three decades in the Senate.

But Republicans in the Senate have refused to support a measure anywhere near that large, preferring to pass smaller bills targeted at specific needs, which Democratic leaders have rejected.

Congress in March approved the $2.2 trillion CARES Act, which included a programme of loans and grants to aid small businesses as well as expanded payments to the workers who lost their jobs.

Those programmes were seen as crucial in helping sectors like retail sales recover from the downturn, but they expired over the summer, raising fears of a renewed slump in economic activity.

"This is about keeping Americans afloat. Get them through this pandemic, get them through where they still — their businesses are able to come back," Biden said. "The money is there."

Two runoff elections in Georgia set for early January will decide if Democrats can take control of the Senate and give the party unified control of Congress, but Biden called for Republicans to overcome their opposition to a spending package in the weeks before the new Congress is seated.

EU IN CRISIS

Hungary, Poland block EU budget, virus recovery money

HUNGARY and Poland blocked approval on Monday of the EU's long-term budget and coronavirus rescue — a 1.8-trillion-euro package — and plunged the bloc into political crisis.

Warsaw and Budapest oppose tying EU funding to respect for the rule of law and their envoys vetoed any decision to proceed — effectively blocking the bloc's virus strategy.

"We have already lost a lot of time in view of the second pandemic wave and the severe economic damage," warned German ambassador Michael Clauss, who chaired the meeting.

"It is crucial that the entire package is now adopted quickly, otherwise the EU will face a serious crisis."

Germany holds the EU's rotating presidency and wants to resolve the battle over the budget and recovery before its six months are up at the end of the year.

The matter will now be taken up by ministers from member states meeting by videoconference on Tuesday to prepare the ground for an EU leaders' summit on Thursday.

"We will now continue our intensive consultations with all parties involved," Clauss said.

The vetoes triggered outrage in Brussels.

Manfred Weber, leader of the centre-right group in the European Parliament, declared: "If you respect the rule of law there is nothing to fear."

"Denying the whole of Europe crisis funding in the worst crisis since decades is irresponsible."

But Hungary was unrepentant.

'Political enslavement'

"Hungary has vetoed the budget," Zoltan Kovacs, a spokesman for Prime Minister Viktor Orban said, arguing that the package must reflect a deal reached in July.

"We cannot support the plan in its present form to tie rule of law criteria to budget decisions," he said.

EU leaders thought they had resolved dispute over the seven-year EU budget and associated stimulus plan at a marathon four-day-and-night summit in July.

A JUDICIAL INTERPRETATION

China specifies rules for copyright ownership

CHINA'S top court has issued a guideline on copyright protection, specifying the rules for claiming copyright ownership of a work.

Natural persons, legal persons and unincorporated organizations who sign their names in a work, performance or sound recording shall have the copyright ownership or ownership of the rights related to the copyright, according to the guideline issued by the Supreme People's Court.

Disputes over authorship should be solved based on factors including the nature, type and form of a work, it said.

The guideline also called for a precise defi-inition of the type of a work according to the Copyright Law and proper handling of new types of cases, such as those involving sports game live streaming and infringement of data protection.

China's top legislature has adopted a decision to amend the Copyright Law, which rolls out tougher punishments for copyright infringement, an effort to further enhance the country's protection of intellectual property rights.

The top court has also released a judicial interpretation on civil litigation proof in cases concerning intellectual property rights.

Myanmar earns nearly US$850mln from fishery export in 2019-2020FY

By Kyaw Htike Soe

MYANMAR fetched US$ 847.5 million from exporting over 600,000 tonnes of fisheries products during the period from 1 October 2019 to late September this financial year, an increase of some

US$126 million from the year-ago period, according to figures released by the Ministry of Commerce. Myanmar's fisheries export was worth US$721.865 million during the same period last year.

The Department of Fisheries under the Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock and Irrigation set a record for foreign income from fishery exports over a period of ten years. The department is working closely in collaboration and coordination with foreign agencies such as FAO and JICA and other regional and international organizations related to fisheries in order to strengthen capacity building on improving fishery statistics collection and interpretation. The department is closely working with the fish breeders, processors and exporters to ensure Myanmar marine products meet the rules and regulations of importing countries. At the same time, fishery officials are trying utmost to conserve fishery resources as well as ensure sustainable development in the country's fishery sector.

The Myanmar Fisheries Federation (MFF), part of the ASEAN Fisheries Federation, is trying to establish fish and prawn farming zones in cooperation with region and state governments while inviting foreign entrepreneurs to invest in the country's fishery industry. The MFF has said modern fish farms and cold-storage facilities would be built in cooperation with some foreign countries to earn about US$3 billion from fisheries export annually. The MFF is also supporting aquaculture development in Myanmar. The MFF plans to establish fish lakes, aqua feedstuff processing factories, cold storages, and packaging factories, in cooperation with foreign companies and investors. The MFF is also seeking ways and means to explore new export markets and adopt an advanced farming system so as to boost the country's fish and prawn farming sector.

Myanmar mainly exports prawns, crabs, squid, shrimp, dried shrimp, and dried fish to its neighbouring countries through its border trade camps. The fishery sector is considered as the most important one after the agriculture sector to provide job opportunities for Myanmar people. Fish and shrimp production industry is the second prioritized business after agriculture sector in Myanmar. Myanmar's fishery sector has been the fourth largest contributor to the country's GDP, and the four largest source of foreign income in the past five years. The fishery sector employs about 3.5 million people in Myanmar, roughly 6% of the Southeast Asian country's workforce, according to a World Bank report in June 2019. There are around 248,000 acres of fish farms and 240,000 prawn farms throughout the country.

The government aims to boost the seafood sector further because it recognizes its significance for local food security, poverty alleviation and the potential contribution to foreign exchange earnings. The primary objective is to increase seafood production for domestic consumption and to export the surplus to overseas markets. The EU and North America account for about 45 per cent of Myanmar's aquaculture exports while China and Thailand account for the remaining 55 per cent. Myanmar's fisheries products from the sea are mainly exported to Europe and Asian countries while freshwater products are exported to Arab countries. Myanmar's marine products mainly go to more than 45 countries including the European Union, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, China, Japan, Thailand, Singapore and United States.

Myanmar freighted 360,000 tonnes of fishery products worth some US$502 million in the financial year 2015-2016FY, exported 430,000 tonnes of fishery products worth US$605 million in 2016-2017FY, shipped 560,000 tonnes of marine products valued at US$711 million in 2017-2018FY, and transported 580,000 tonnes of fishery products worth around US$730 million in 2018-2019FY, according to the statistics compiled by the ministry.

Wave Money sets record breaking 1.1 million monthly active users of WavePay

WAVE Money has set a new record as WavePay application crossed

1.1 million monthly active users in October. With a remittance value reaching 8 Trillion Myanmar Kyat (US$5.9 billion) from January to September 2020, Myanmar's leading mobile financial services provider posted an impressive daily average growth of 162% in new WavePay registrations by comparison to January 2020.

Reported in accordance with the internationally-recognized metrics of the GSM Association (GSMA), Wave Money reflects the strong market opportunity and rapid adoption of mobile money in Myanmar. "This is a very exciting milestone because it's a positive indicator not only of our performance but the health of the industry as a whole and how people are embracing digital. In line with our vision of creating a fairer future for Myanmar, we couldn't be happier knowing that mobile money is now a big part of their daily lives," said Brad Jones, CEO of Wave Money.

An active mobile money account is a mobile money account which has been used to conduct at least one transaction during a certain period of time of either 30 days or 90 days, according to GSMA, the world's largest industry organization of mobile network operators.

In its 2019 State of the Industry Report (SOTIR), GSMA noted that customers used their mobile money accounts more often and as part of their daily activities. At the end of last year, 35.8% of some 372 million accounts were active on a 90-day basis.

The gap between activity on a 30-day and 90-day basis is narrowing, the report said, with 70% of 90-day active accounts now active on a monthly basis. GSMA predicts that by 2025, the number of monthly mobile money customer accounts would surpass 370 million, the level where 90-day accounts were at last year.

"Although COVID-19 has no doubt heightened our digital dependence this year, the digital lifestyle is definitely here to stay. Mobile money usage will continue to rapidly rise even post-pandemic as the people are enjoying the many benefits—convenient, secure and safe cash remittances, quick and easy payment, and access to a wide range financial services particularly among the unbanked. In Myanmar greater financial inclusion has changed the lives of millions, including thousands of agents nationwide," Brad Jones added.

Wave Money paid more than 62 Billion Myanmar Kyat (US$46 million) in commissions to agents during the January to September 2020 period alone. With coverage of 89% of the country, Wave Money is the largest MFS provider and undisputed market leader. Unparalleled service and expertise, cutting-edge technology, and a strong network of more than 64,000 agents has enabled the company to maintain the trust of customers: merchants, government agencies, non-government and humanitarian organizations.

Disbursements from the government and NGO sectors represented a substantial share of the total remittance value in 2020, driven largely by COVID-19 relief funds. As of the end of September, Wave Money transferred more than 17 billion Myanmar Kyat (US$13 million) as payment partner of governments and NGOs. It has committed to waive all service fees for the disbursement of funds to those hard-hit by the pandemic for the duration of the crisis. Since March, hundreds of thousands of vulnerable people including garment workers, civil servants, and farmers, have been digitally receiving emergency funds using WavePay.—GNLM

COVID-19: French sports stadiums to keep ban on fans until January

Fans will not be allowed to return to French stadiums to watch sporting matches before January, and then with strict crowd limits depending on a venue's size, the French presidency said Tuesday. PHOTO: AFP

PARIS — Fans will not be allowed to return to French stadiums to watch sporting matches before January, and then with strict crowd limits depending on a venue's size, the French presidency said Tuesday.

A return of spectators "is not possible in December" given the recent surge in Covid-19 cases in France, which led the government to announce a new partial lockdown last month, President Emmanuel Macron told sports officials in a conference call.

But he said youth clubs might be allowed to reopen in December if the number of new daily coronavirus cases continues to decline, as long as reinforced measures are taken to avoid contagion risks, particularly indoors, his office said.

Macron also unveiled a 100 million euro plan for next year to finance a "sports pass" encouraging young people to take up athletic activities, for example by paying club dues or buying equipment.

The funds could prove a lifeline for amateur clubs in particular, which have been hammered by the health crisis.

Government officials have indicated they hope to ease the lockdown from next month if the health crisis eases, in particular for hospitals dealing with a surge in intensive care patients.—AFP ■

England's Henderson and Sterling out of Iceland match

LONDON — Jordan Henderson and Raheem Sterling will miss England's Nations League fixture against Iceland on Wednesday, the Football Association has announced.

Liverpool captain Henderson suffered a knock during Sunday's loss away to Belgium, while Manchester City forward Sterling has withdrawn because of a calf problem.

An FA statement issued Monday said the two players had returned to their respective clubs for further assessment.

Elneny tests positive as international break sees spike in EPL virus cases

LONDON — Arsenal and Egypt midfielder Mohamed Elneny has tested positive for Covid-19, his agent said Monday, as figures published by the Premier League showed a sharp increase in cases coinciding with the international break.

Already unpopular with Premier League clubs because of the risk of injury to key players, the mood among the likes of Arsenal's Mikel Arteta and his fellow top-flight bosses is unlikely to be improved by figures from the November 9-15 latest round of weekly tests showing the Premier League returned 16 positive coronavirus cases from 1,207 players and staff tested.

This compares with four positives from 1,646 tests during the week of November 2-8 and a previous weekly high of 10 positives.

And while players who were away on international duty at the time would not have been included in the Premier League's latest figures, there may now be concerns that the knock-on effects of players returning from long-distance trips have led to a surge in reported cases.

Those who tested positive will now self-isolate for 10 days.

As has long been its policy, the Premier League refused to name the clubs or individuals involved.

But Alan Nazmy, Elneny's agent, tweeted: "Elneny Positive Cov19 get well soon."

Meanwhile, the Egyptian

Football Association confirmed in a Facebook post that Elneny was isolating in line with medical protocols.

Djokovic off to a flying start at ATP Finals as Medvedev battles past Zverev

LONDON — Novak Djokovic produced a masterclass on Monday to launch his campaign for a record-equalling sixth title at the ATP Finals as Daniil Medvedev outfought former champion Alexander Zverev.

The world number one crushed Argentine eighth seed Diego Schwartzman 6-3, 6-2 in the opening round-robin match in Group Tokyo 1970 before Russia's Medvedev triumphed 6-3, 6-4.

Djokovic, who has already sealed the year-end number one spot for a record-equalling sixth time, is aiming to match the absent Roger Federer, who holds the record of six ATP Finals wins.

The Serbian, 33, has enjoyed another sparkling season despite the coronavirus interruption, winning four titles including the Australian Open.

He came into the match at an empty O2 Arena with a 5-0 record against the diminutive Schwartzman but the debutant started impressively, breaking Djokovic in the third game.

However, the top seed broke back immediately and took his game up a notch, breaking again and converting his first set point with a powerful serve down the T.

Two more breaks in the second set were enough to take Djokovic to a comfortable win against his outclassed opponent.

The Serbian admitted he had started slowly but said he was pleased with his game as the match wore on. "In the second set I started swinging through the ball a bit more, bit less hesitation from both corners and I was very pleased with the way I played in the second set especially," he said.—AFP ■
